Adventures from LOMIK Camps & Retreat Centers

Reshape

Zaragosa had recently become a Christian and was eager to grow in his faith. He chose a Christian college and even worked at a Christian camp, hoping those choices would help him discover his calling.

Still, faith felt like just one part of his life - not the foundation of it. He thought of a "calling" as a job title or a career path, not something that shaped his daily rhythm. He was searching, but hadn't yet found the deeper connection he longed for.

Then, a friend invited him to dinner with some folks from LOMIK Camps. They were welcoming, joyful, and clearly centered in their faith. Intrigued, Zaragosa signed up to be a summer counselor, having no idea how that one "yes" would reshape everything.

Camp life at LOMIK was different. Ministry wasn't just part of the day - it was the heartbeat of it. Zaragosa found himself immersed in a rhythm where faith filled every moment.

One evening, while walking two campers back from the lake in the dark, their simple conversation turned to something profound: what it means to "walk by faith." By the end of the summer, Zaragosa's entire understanding of calling had shifted. "Christian ministry was the main thing I learned to spend my time on," he says. "All time was oriented toward God."

Because of your partnership with camp, Zaragosa had the space to hear God's call in a new way. Camp didn't just change his life, it changed his direction. He's now enrolled in seminary, preparing to become a hospital chaplain so he can be present with others in their hardest moments - just like Christ is.
